The cases he takes on routinely include large quantities of digital evidence - most often video footage provided by the police or district attorney - which taxes his small staff.

With Reduct, he simply uploads any footage he is given to transcribe it, thereby making it navigable and searchable. His office can then easily clip video and include transcript of relevant dialogue in motions and at trial ways that were previously unimaginable. Evidence is shared with clients throughout the process, and experts can be quickly brought up to speed on past litigation and key evidence ahead of cross examination.

His office is more efficient as a result, and his clients appreciate the better legal outcomes on their cases.

"I don't know how I did this before I had Reduct!"
